1. This communication is in response to applicant's amendment filed on February 2, 2006.

2. Claims 1,6 and 8 are objected to because of the following informalities:

In claims 1,6,8, the term "fully activating the motor" is vague. It is unclear as to what is meant by "fully activating the motor".

Appropriate correction is required.

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Mourad et al. (6,236,175).

As to claims 1,6-8, Mourad discloses an apparatus for measuring a rotational speed of an electric motor including activating the motor for a defined measuring time at a time interval to be determined (col. 1, lines 57-68) and measuring a frequency of current ripples (col. 3, lines 32-41) that is proportional to the rotational speed of the motor (Figures 1,2). Mourad discloses a circuit element (figs. 1,3); a current proportional voltage-measuring device (fig. 2); filter 9; and an evaluation circuit 8 (note figs. 1-3).

As to claims 2-5, Mourad teaches to measure the rotational speed from the frequency of the ripples. It is inherent that the speed can be determined from the interval between the square wave voltage pulses (note figure 2).

4. Applicant's arguments filed on February 2, 2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. In response to applicant's argument that the references fail to show certain features of applicant's invention, it is noted that the feature upon which applicant relies i.e., fully activating the motor is extremely broad terminology. "Fully activating the motor" could be interpreted in several ways. It could also mean that the motor is just "on". Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993).

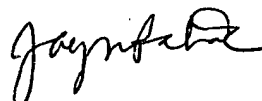

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
